PA NEW OBSERVES

The other day Pa New saw a little coupe being towed over North street by a truck. On the rear window of the coupe was painted the price—$40. A pedestrian near Pa New murmured: "I wouldn't give 40 cents."

Rattling coal chutes warn Pa New that it won't be very long now until a little fire in the furnace will feel good. If you haven't checked up on your heating plant, now is the time to do it. Don't wait until the frost comes and the furnace men are busy.

Beating the traffic light is bad business, yet we can stand on any street corner and see motorists take chances. They note a green light when a block or more away and make a run for it, and when they reach the street intersection, just as the light turns yellow, they speed on through, because they are going so fast that they cannot stop suddenly. It is extremely dangerous to run for lights, as you never know what the fellow on the other street will do, or just where the pedestrian may be.

In case you haven't been out in the country lately, Pa New rises to remark that elderberries are getting ripe. Mother knows the best time to gather elderberries, but for the benefit of young wives who want to make jelly, in case there are any such, it may be stated that it's best to gather the elderberries when they are red, and not wait until they turn black. Even then they won't tell good unless you put some green grapes or sour apple juice with them.

There's a natural human interest that seems to be gratified by association with old friends, so tomorrow, at Cascade Park, old timers will walk down memory's lane, plucking from the garden of their thoughts, the flowers of early days. Old timers day seems to be a regular institution in New Castle, like Thanksgiving or Christmas, and we

Controversy Developing On Thanksgiving Date Change

(International News Service)
Tempest of controversy was gathering today over President Roosevelt's surprise announcement yesterday that he was moving Thanksgiving up a week earlier this year.

The greatest headache was suffered by the nation's enterprising collegiate athletic directors who suddenly found themselves without the traditional Thanksgiving day football games. They were faced with the necessity of making quick revisions of the year's scheduled or playing the games as scheduled without the usual turkey day fan-fare.

James Frasier, chairman of the selectmen of Plymouth, Mass., where the first Thanksgiving day was observed in 1621, raised a bitter protest against the president's action which upset a precedent established by President Abraham Lincoln.

Frasier said he expected many historical societies to join him in protest against the change in the date which President Roosevelt said he made because of complaints chiefly from merchants over the closeness between Thanksgiving day and Christmas.

It was not until 1863 when President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving day that the nation began observing the holiday on the same day and with regularity. Governors of the states followed suit and so the custom remained until President Roosevelt, a shatterer of many precedents, shattered another by changing the date from November 30 to 23 this year.

Governors May Determine Date For Thanksgiving

(International News Service)
Whether the traditional Thanksgiving turkey will be carved on the next to last or last Thursday of November this year appeared today to depend on the whim of 48 governors as several state chief executives took issue with a surprise announcement for President Roosevelt moving "the day of Thanksgiving" up a week earlier this year.

President Roosevelt, shatterer of precedents, said he was heeding the pleas of business men, retailers and department store executives in setting aside November 23 instead of November 30 as Thanksgiving but since it is not a legal holiday the governors had something to say about it. Past procedure has been for the governors to affirm the presidential proclamation, a ritual which started in 1863 when President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving Day.

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, August 15.—Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania, said today he will cooperate with President Roosevelt's plan to move up Thanksgiving Day one week earlier this year.

Governor James, a Republican, explained that under the law he has the choice of designating as Thanksgiving Day a day of his own selection or a day chosen by the president.

"Under the circumstances," declared the governor, "since the president this year has decided that the fourth Thursday of November is a better occasion for this observance than is the fifth Thursday, I shall follow his precedent."

"When the time comes for the issuance of my Thanksgiving Day proclamation it will be for the same day as designated by the president. For many years it has been the custom in this state for the governor to issue his Thanksgiving Day proclamation after that of the president, setting the same day designated by the president."

Governor James declined to discuss merits of the president's proposal.

Railroad Authorities Believe

Train Crash

(International News Service)
RENO, Nev., August 15.—Death toll of the Palisade Canyon train disaster stood at 24 today as law enforcement agencies of city, state and nation combined forces in a far-flung search for the wrecker of the streamlined 17-car "City of San Francisco."

Even private citizens, many of them expressing a desire to administer swift justice when, and if the mass murderer is caught, joined in self-sworn posses and scoured the arid desert hills for some clue to the killer's trail.

Casualty List Revised
Meanwhile the Southern Pacific company again revised the casualty list, reducing the number of deaths by one and raising the number of injured to 124. One man at first believed to have been killed was found in an Elko hospital where doctors said his condition was not critical.

For the first time since the wreck occurred late Saturday night, authorities were hunting a "definite suspect" in connection with evidence the train was sabotaged, it was revealed today.

This information came from President A. D. McDonald of the Southern Pacific railroad, who said that a special appeal had been made to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the F. B. I., for cooperation of G-men in the man-hunt.

"Work Of One Man"
"The evidence is of such a nature that we do not feel free to divulge it at this time," McDonald said. He added that in the belief of investigators the wrecking of the train was the work of one man.

HUSS FORESEES DANZIG PEACE

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, August 15.—Pierre J. Huss, chief correspondent of the International News Service Berlin Bureau, today foresaw the peaceful Anschluss of Danzig and the Reich and domination of continental politics by Chancellor Hitler.

If Hitler's plans work out to their logical conclusion, Huss predicted as he sailed on the Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam to resume his duties after a brief vacation in the United States. Germany will displace Britain as the dominant power in Europe.

production, government sources revealed.

Both the state and commerce departments advised United Engineering and Foundry Co., officials against the transaction, pointing to numerous cancellations of order commitments by the Japanese in the past.

The American firm, however, proceeded with the sale over this advice, and now fears for the return of its investment, due to the intervening notice of intention by this government to abrogate its commercial treaty with Japan.

The extremely difficult task of transporting the steel mill by flatcar and steamship was carried out so quietly that few persons outside the two government departments involved knew anything about the deal.

No New 'Munich' Agreement Over Danzig Says Poland

(International News Service)
WARSAW, August 15.—Poland today virtually turned down in advance any attempts by Germany to gain Danzig through a new "Munich" or any other diplomatic means.

"Germany can bring about Anschluss only through a victorious war," it was flatly stated by a quasi-official spokesman.

Polish quarters saw in the visit of Dr. Karl A. Burckhardt, League of Nations commissioner for Danzig, to Chancellor Hitler, the first concrete move in the direction of an international conference over Danzig—a conference in which Poland might not even have a voice.

Poland's belief is that Danzig itself is secondary in the Germans' broad scheme of development. After Danzig, Warsaw fears, would come the corridor then possibly a new partition of Poland, after the fashion of Czecho-Slovakia's dismemberment.

Intense diplomatic activity meanwhile occupies Foreign Minister Joseph Beck. Yesterday he received Ambassadors Sir Howard William Kennard of Britain, and Leon Noel of France, and Mgr. Filippo Cortesi, papal nuncio.

Under-Cover Mobilization Is Reported In Germany

(International News Service)
BERLIN, August 15.—Europe's brief hopes for an early and peaceful settlement of the Danzig crisis were quickly thrust into the background today as Germany rushed "under-cover mobilization."

There was every surface indication that Germany and Italy, following the Ciano-Von Ribbentrop meetings at Berchtesgaden, are making most energetic preparations for "any eventuality," rather than floating trial balloons to test the air for a Danzig parley.

Germany is concentrating her strongest forces along her eastern frontiers. By day and by night she is shifting huge quantities of equipment of all kinds to strategically important points.

This "under-cover mobilization" probably will reach its peak around the beginning of the Nuremberg party congress, September 2-12, when Chancellor Hitler's active military power will enable him to proclaim, not a war threat, but Germany's readiness to step into action with every ounce of her strength if necessary.

Rumors that actual mobilization might be expected before the party congress were discredited in semi-official quarters.

"Naturally," a spokesman said, "Germany is compelled to prepare for all eventualities, especially in view of Poland's partial mobilization and constant Polish threats of aggression against Danzig, but it is not likely that any immediate action will be taken."

HARRISBURG, Aug. 15.—Testimony that Harry H. Temple, former chief highways engineer, and one of three defendants in the state's bonding conspiracy trial, advised contractors they were not compelled to do business with two specified insurance agencies, was offered in Dauphin county court today.

Taking the stand as the trial of Temple, James P. Kirk, Pittsburgh city treasurer and Allegheny county Democratic chairman, and Victor S. Skok, Kirk's associate in an insurance agency, entered its seventh day. Willis N. Conger, Harrisburg, a salesman, testified he accompanied a contractor who visited Temple regarding surety bonds in the spring of 1937.

Salesman's Testimony
Conger testified that Temple told the contractor that the highway department and Earle administration would appreciate it if he placed his bonding business with a particular Pittsburgh firm. The witness went on:

"But he (Temple) said to him at the same time: 'It's not compulsory at all. If you prefer to do business with the people you have been going business with, it's perfectly all right.'"

T. V. A. Takes Over

Electric Properties

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, August 15.—Turning over the electric properties of the Tennessee Electric Power Co., Commonwealth & Southern subsidiary, to the Tennessee Valley Authority, Wendell L. Wilkie, president, today declared loss of these properties will not be in vain if it serves to arouse the American people against government invasion of their business.

More than 200 representatives of the company, the TVA, the state of Tennessee, Nashville, Chattanooga and 32 other municipalities and rural co-operatives were present to close the deal at the First National Bank.

Checks for the $78,600,000 purchase price were given to the Commonwealth & Southern in their presence, and the company turned over to the federal, state and municipal authorities deeds to all the properties involved.

Wilkie in a statement following the conference acknowledged the customers of the properties will enjoy lower rates made possible by government subsidy, "but they," Wilkie warned, "and all the people in the United States, will pay the higher taxes which tax exempt and heavily subsidized government operations inevitably require."

By CHARLES A. SMITH

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Europe's brief interlude of speculation over a possible Pacific solution of the Danzig crisis was abruptly swept away today and "power diplomacy" returned to the fore when Britain's foreign office flatly denied that any Danzig peace plan lay before London.

In a move to clear the atmosphere of all the diplomatic mystery of the last few days, the foreign office stated that no proposal for a settlement in Danzig had been received from Dr. Karl H. Burckhardt, League of Nations commissioner for the free city, or from any other quarter.

No Proposals
Furthermore, the foreign office spokesman insisted that his majesty's government had made no proposals for such a solution.

Puncturing trial balloons that soared over almost every capital in Europe, Britain made it perfectly clear that no diplomatic maneuvering towards another Munich would force her to abandon her pledges to Poland.

This government's policy regarding Danzig, said the foreign office, remains "absolutely unchanged and perfectly plain."

"Britain always will welcome solution acceptable to the Poles, but Britain is bound to assist Poland in resisting aggression."

Dies Committee Will Resume Probe

Hearings Will Extend Months

Names Of Persons Summoned As Opening Witnesses Not Divulged

COMMUNIST WORK TO BE INVESTIGATED

By ROBERT HUMPHREYS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON Aug. 15.—The Dies committee will resume its inquiry into Nazi, fascist, and communist activities Wednesday with hearings scheduled to continue without interruption until December.

Although the names of the opening witnesses have not been divulged, their testimony, according to committee members, will concern anti-semitic organizations in this country.

The hearings will be the first held by the committee since last May when Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley (U. S. A. Retired) created a sensation by praising Hitler's policies, urging formation of an "emergency" military government in the United States, and frankly admitting anti-Jewish activities.

Armed last February with a special $100,000 fund appropriated by the house, the committee has had investigators in the field for months. Although literally scores of communists have been examined, the committee plans to present in public hearings only the most far-reaching ones.

Probe Subjects
Tentative plans call for presentation of evidence intended to establish beyond dispute two long suspected situations for which supporting facts heretofore has been lacking:

1. That the Russian government actively finances and directs communist activities in this country.
2. That Germany and Italy have directly and indirectly encouraged Nazi and fascist organizations in the United States, and that anti-semitic groups of American origin have been aided.

In addition, it is the committee's belief that its evidence will show that un-American activities have spread in the last few years into places little suspected and to an extent not generally realized.

Established a year ago by the house, the Dies committee has been a storm-center since its creation. It incurred the wrath of President Roosevelt and other high administration officials last year when it attempted to show that communism had gained a hold in government and labor circles.

Re-established this year, the committee to date has employed a policy of rigid secrecy concerning its work, handicapped last year, according to Chairman Dies (D-Texas), because of lack of funds, the committee this year obtained a new and larger staff of investigators.

BRITAIN DENIES ANY PROPOSAL ABOUT DANZIG

Burckhardt, has been received concerning the "general tenor" of his conversation with Chancellor Hitler last Friday at Berchtesgaden, it was announced. It was emphasized, however, that the message, as well as any future communications from Dr. Burckhardt or Warsaw on the subject of Danzig will be treated with the strictest confidence.

Deny Reports
At the moment, the British government is not aware that Dr. Burckhardt has any intention of visiting London. The foreign office strenuously denied also that Dr. Burckhardt consulted with the British government before going to Berchtesgaden, or communicated any message from the British government to Hitler.

London has no knowledge concerning reports that plans for a four or five-power peace conference were afoot.

"Complete nonsense" was the label applied to rumors that Britain had any advance knowledge of any plan that Foreign Minister Ciano of Italy may have communicated to Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop of Germany at Salzburg.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is expected to come to London from Scotland next week for a routine review of the general situation with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and other leading ministers.

The foreign office also professed ignorance concerning reports that Soviet Russia wishes to widen the military-naval staff talks, now current in Moscow to include the possibility of a Russo-Japanese war.

Nor could the office indicate when new instructions might be forwarded to Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, ambassador in Tokyo, regarding resumption of the Tientsin conference there.

look forward to it with much the same longing. The day is usually saddened when we miss friends that were at former reunions. But their places are taken by others, for we can't keep back the march of Father Time.

It's but a few weeks since the blistering heat was drying up the corn on our toes, bullfrogs were foraging for a drink, and farmers were prophesying crop failures, as they surveyed the brassy skies. But what has happened. The thunders roared and the lightnings flashed and cooling rains have followed each other in rapid succession. Mother earth has been wet to the hide, and drooping crops have stiffened their backbones. Potatoes and corn are looking fine, and there's nothing more for which we pine.

Do you know anything about moonshine? No, not the kind you think, but the kind that comes from the queen of night. When the moon is very young and the slender bright crescent is visible, the remainder of the portion of the moon facing the earth is often seen faintly illuminated. The faint illumination is due to the reflected sunshine from the earth's surface falling on the moon, it then being "full earth" to persons on the moon looking down on us.

Pa Newc noted a tractor lined up at a gas station pump along one of the local roads, securing a new supply of gasoline. It looked rather unusual, although tractors are probably frequently driven to the gas stations along the highways.

Wonder why some arrangements cannot be made to put a top surface on Hazelcroft avenue between North Mercer street and the Wilmington road in Neshannock township? The thoroughfare has been graded and paved with stone and loose limestone, but a top dressing is badly needed.

New Castle motorists who chance to make a stop on the main streets in State College, will feel right at home. The same type of parking meters is in use in both towns.

Among the many displays advertising the Old Timers' picnic, advertising about town, is one in the display case in front of the public library that warrants recognition. Included in this display are the instruments that were used to map out New Castle, and the first map of the city. Other items in the case are also quite interesting.

In connection with Old Timers Day tomorrow, the question has arisen as to the dates of New Castle's settlement. The first settlers came into what is now Mahoning township as early as 1793. The first township of New Castle was laid out by John Carlisle Stewart, who was accompanied by his brothers-in-law John and Hugh Wood, and John McWhorter, in April 1825. New Castle was chartered as a borough on March 25, 1825. Lawrence county was formed on March 20, 1849 from parts of Mercer and Beaver counties.

Contrary to belief, no part of Butler county was included in the county when it was formed.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR GATHERING AT PARK WEDNESDAY

will be furnished by Emery's old time orchestra. This feature is in charge of Frank H. Robinson and his aides.

Ask Cooperation
As this day is designed particularly for the older residents of the community, the officers of the association ask the public to cooperate with them in reserving the inner circle of seats around the dance floor for the Old Timers.

Old Timers' Day was started in 1907 by a group of representative citizens of the community who had lived in New Castle all of their lives, and has become a tradition. Each year in August, the event takes place, and in conjunction therewith, occurs the Reynoldstown school reunion, and the Roundhead reunion.

As residents of the community have scattered to distant points and the members of the original old committee have passed away, the attendance has dwindled from the great crowds numbering as many as 17,000 persons, but with a great number of people, it is still the outstanding day of the year, when they can gather and greet their friends of many years standing.

Grand March Features

One of the features of the Grand March this year will be the presence of a number of couples who have observed their Golden Wedding anniversary. Any who have been married for 50 years have been issued a special invitation to attend, and a great many are expected to do so.

A number of people are also planning to come to the reunion dressed in the costumes of bygone days. This has been an outstanding feature of a number of previous years, and has attracted much attention. No prizes are to be offered this year, the committee states, but anyone wishing to dress up in old time costumes will be welcome to do so.

Taking charge of the grand march formation will be 16 local ladies, who will also look after the registration of guests from distances.

Named On Committee

Serving on that committee will be:

Mrs. S. D. Pearson, Mrs. Jessie V. Cunningham, Mrs. George F. Winters, Miss Margaret Sankey, Mrs. George S. Long, Miss Mary Emma Hoyt, Mrs. Sam H. McGoun, Mrs. R. B. Quincy, A. McBride, Mrs. R. B. Jameson, Mrs. John W. Norris, Miss Catherine Cunningham, Mrs. Margaret King Fowle, Mrs. E. Lee Boyles, Mrs. Esther Watson Anderson, Mrs. Ella Long Elder, and Mrs. Margaret Kirk Lisgett.

Through the courtesy of George E. Lyon, of the New Castle Business College, two typists will be at the registration booth, who will type names and avoid confusion.

The above committee will meet in the pavilion at one o'clock, next Wednesday.

Interest in the day has been enhanced by the displays in local store windows of old time furniture, costumes, books, pictures, quilts, and other articles, which have attracted a great deal of attention. Both in the main business section and in the South Side, merchants have donated their windows for this purpose and the displays have created considerable interest.

A third character witness, Andrew B. Berger, a Pittsburgh banker, said he had known Kirk for more than 20 years.

Contractor Testifies

From N. B. Putnam, a Harrisburg contractor, prosecutor Earl V. Compton sought to extract an admission that he had had difficulties with the highway department over inspection, but Putnam denied the existence of differences.

Putnam earlier had denied in defense of Temple that the accused ex-highway chief had tried to intimidate him into doing business with any particular firm.

Dr. James P. Kerr, Pittsburgh contractor for nine years, and a Republican, testified that Kirk's reputation in Pittsburgh was "very good." He admitted, however, he knew nothing about Kirk's reputation in connection with his insurance business.

Laduer had been arrested after tourists reported that he had asked suspicious questions at Fernley, near Reno, the morning after the wreck.

Of the four names added to the death toll, two were passengers and two members of the train crew, making a total of eight passengers and 16 employees.

FORGET BANK FUNDS

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, August 15.—Forgetful Pennsylvanians contribute a small fortune to the state treasury every year by neglecting to collect bank deposits.

One authority estimated that the commonwealth is enriched about $150,000 a year in "unclaimed" holdings. In 1938, the sum rose to $237,171, probably due to the fact that it was the first year the state was empowered to collect "forgotten" dividends, bond interests and deposits with corporations by escheat.

HORSE-AND-BUGGY SPEED

YOU may laugh at the horse-and-buggy days all you want to—but you could get around New York City faster than than you can now. At least, that is what President Clyde G. Conley of the American Institute of Steel Construction told members of his organization at a dinner in New York.

"The crossing traffic has so far slowed up traffic in the streets of New York City today," Mr. Conley said, "that high-speed automobiles are compelled to move from one point to another at a total covered time no greater than was possible in the horse-and-buggy days. Today, because of this constant stopping and starting, the innumerable red stop-lights, automobile traffic will move no more than one mile an hour. Fifteen minutes by automobile to cover one cross-town block is not an unknown experience. Yet history records that old horse-drawn coaches, which once operated on New York streets over more than 200 miles, averaged 11½ miles per hour. Today, automobile traffic does not average more than fifteen miles per hour. Put a few more cars on the streets of New York and movement will practically cease."

It may be argued in rebuttal that if there had been as many horse-drawn vehicles in New York streets in the good old days as there are automobiles today, traffic congestion would have been even worse. It may further be suggested that the present-day New Yorker, if he really is in a hurry, can leave his car at home and use the subway. But such rejoinders to the horse-and-buggy comparisons won't help to solve a traffic problem which in New York, as elsewhere, is bound to get worse before it gets better.

WOULD SEEM BETTER TO LET HIM STAY!

When General Grant got home from his world tour, after he had been President, he gazed upon the uncompleted State, War and Navy building at Washington and said that it was the most curious edifice that he had seen in the course of his travels. The Ecole des Beaux Arts, in this structure, found full, baroque expression. Marble, granite and bronze adorn its two miles of corridors. Completed in 1875, the Department of State—sometimes itself a bit on the baroque side—has there since found its appropriate home.

The Secretary of State is now going to be moved out of his office on the second floor up to the fourth floor to make room for the six Presidential assistants, authorized in the Reorganization Act—gentlemen with a passion for not getting their names into print. Doubtless, Mr. Hull will find the fourth floor airier and lighter. But it won't be the second floor and it won't be the old-fashioned, recoco office where Mr. Hull and his predecessors have worried and worked since 1875.

Progress is all well enough, but in a disintegrating world tradition is worth a thought, too. The horrid project of remodeling the outside of the building so that it would match the Doric temple that houses the Treasury Department died for want of funds. Perhaps it's sentimental, but we'd like to see Mr. Hull remain in the old office, where sat Stimson, Kellogg, Hughes, Lansing, Bryan, Knox, Hay, Root, Blaine, Evarts and Fish.

Could not the six Presidential assistants go up to the fourth floor and the Secretary of State remain put?

BUFFALO BILL'S BOSS TO RIDE AGAIN

In the memory of any one who grew up in the West during the pre-World War period, the name Wells, Fargo will strike a nostalgic note. The great express company, long after the completion of transcontinental railroads was an institution which seemed, especially to small boys, of little less importance than the United States postal service.

And even boys who, perhaps, never saw the horse-drawn wagons labeled "Well, Fargo & Co."—who grew up during those times in the far-off East—learned about Buffalo Bill through often surreptitious reading of the paper-backed books which fitted nicely into a school geography.

The express company saw its beginnings in 1839, although it did not take its famed name until 1852. Its most spectacular exploit was the organization of the Pony Express in 1860, the messengers of which had to outride and outfight Indians to carry news of Lincoln's inauguration and of the start of the Civil War to the West.

Between St. Joseph, Mo., and the West Coast, stations were established, on the average, twenty-five miles apart. Riders were expected to cover seventy-five miles a day. Eight days were allowed for the journey. There were about eighty riders, who were paid $100 to $125 a month, along with station keepers and assistant station keepers managing 190 stations.

The amount of fiction based upon the Pony Express and Buffalo Bill, who was a Pony Express rider at the age of fourteen, might lead to the impression that the institution was in existence for many long years. As a matter of fact, it was discontinued after the lapse of sixteen months, when the telegraph took over its job.

But the main contribution of Wells, Fargo to American economic life was the express service between the East and West Coasts. Freight was collected in New York and shipped, by way of the Isthmus of Panama, to San Francisco and other Pacific ports. And vice versa. It flourished profitably at the time of the California gold rush.

Well, Fargo & Co. has not been operating since, when the government took war-time control of the railroads in 1918, it was consolidated with several other express companies. The other day the name Wells, Fargo & Co. disappeared from the list of the New York Stock Exchange.

But now, after twenty-one years of non-operation, Wells, Fargo is again about to enter the transportation field, taking a leaf out of the book of the past. It will collect express shipments in the East and ship them by way of the Panama Canal to points in California. Buffalo Bill's old boss rides again.

Hints On Etiquette

Even on the picnic or bathing beach one can show good breeding. Being careless in the matter of proper disposal of the remnants of your picnic lunch may make the picnic spot or beach very unpleasant for other picnickers.

SELF CONTROL NEEDED

Among adults, those who have good manners are often dubbed "stuck up" by others who have not. Those who have not are counted boorish by those who have. Children constantly nagged by their parents about manners come to think of good manners as matters of mere personal whims of adults.

These children, say from six to twelve, like certain uncouth grow-ups, when in groups of their own kind frequently express a deal of pleasure poking fun at others who are mannerly. This clearly is a way they have of defending their own state of cultural attainments, of escaping feelings of inferiority, even of winning feelings of superiority.

Function of Good Manners

Always this naturally antagonistic attitude will go on, I suppose, but it should decrease in force as members of both groups grow more aware of the basic function of good manners, namely, consideration for the rights and feelings of others.

We must not forget, of course, that cultivation of good manners calls for self-control, self-sacrifice, therefore effort; and that human nature normally seeks to escape the hard and find the easy way.

Then, too, we parents must admit that our concern about our children's manners tends to be a selfish one; for our thought is not so much that they shall grow to be socially comfortable, worthy of approval of their fellows, likable in short, as that by their manners they shall not bring disapproval upon us from our adult friends. Is it not true that we often make our children feel that the good manners we expect in them are for our personal satisfaction?

Gain by Imitation

Provided we adults were disciplined in good manners we observed meticulously, and were to make our children happy in our company, make them always feel their personality is held in high esteem by us, their wishing to grow up, would by normal imitation, gain at being mannerly just as they gain in height and weight.

In quiet moments when we are masters of ourselves and know we show him that such behavior as eating daintily—taking small bites, eating food with lips closed, not talking with food in the mouth and so on—are reasonable matters of concern for the comfort of others in our presence. I wish teachers would often lead their children at opportune occasions to see the reasonableness of good manners.

THE CARD DECK

I wonder how many disciples of Ely Culbertson pay any attention to the cards with which they are playing, except to figure out what-others have two and one-half or five and one-half honor cards in their hands, or what answer they will make to their partner's two bid? These playing cards have a great history, for when the children of men found that it was possible to stop for a while in their quest for food or in their fights with their enemies, to amuse themselves with some peaceful occupation, some genius among them invented playing cards.

These cards were pretty crude cards at first and it is said that the Chinese made the first deck. This deck was not made to amuse men, but to amuse the concubines of Seum-Ho in about the Twelfth Century. At least that is what is related by Ching-Tze-Tung in his Diary, four centuries later.

There is no doubt but what the first deck of playing cards came out of the East, for there are unquestioned relics of them in India, Persia and Egypt. The Arabs also devoted some time to a game devised from these cards. The deck consisting of fifty-two playing cards is probably much more recent, the history of which runs back perhaps about three centuries.

The Ace has occupied various positions in the deck. Originally, it held the lowest position and today, while it is called an honor card, and occupies the highest position in the deck, the real honor cards are the well-known colorful Kings, Queens and Jacks. These three cards in the four suits have been painted and printed, practically as they appear today, for more than two centuries.

The four suits presented something also. The suit of Hearts was (Continued On Page Five)

SAFETY CONSCIOUS

Since joining this class I have become safety conscious. Going up Highland Avenue today I noticed several things. I noticed that the speed limit on this thoroughfare is 25 miles per hour. This was a distinct surprise to me because I am sure some drive at the rate of 50 miles per hour. In fact sometimes I stop terrified at such speed on a city street.

Not more than a week ago I asked a man what the speed limit is on Highland Avenue and he told me there wasn't any and explained if there were the street would be posted. Now this man travels this street every day in his car and had never noticed these signs. So now I am safety conscious as well as safety conscious, which means the same thing since signs are posted for our safety.

At Park Avenue there is a SLOW sign. I watched the drivers there and I am quite convinced the ones passing at that time are not sign conscious.

I can't help but think that every one taking this course is going to take pride in driving in accordance with the safety rules stressed and a sign will mean something real. Already I think of a sign as a friend speaking to me in a kindly way.

At Leasure Avenue I saw a terrifying scene. A street car coming by the hill stopped to let passengers off and on automobile back of it stopped for an instant and then shot out passing the street car on the left side and then made a sharp turn into West Leasure. A car waiting on East Leasure then entered Highland turning down the hill just missing the automobile that had passed the street car on the left. And coming down Highland at a great speed was another car.

Fortunately there wasn't an accident but I thought of the slogan, "Better Be Safe Than Sorry."

Note: The above was written by a person who is going to try to drive an automobile.

Never let a girl pick your blind date. She always select her homeliest friend so the contrast will make her look better.

We often wonder why some people believe all the crazy rumors they hear and they are often things that could be proved false in a few minutes. People just seem to prefer believing lies than the truth.

The dandelion is also a great thing to some people, but it is not for the gods it produces. A wild drink is made from it's juices and people see yellow after licking up some of it.

On September 14 the 125th anniversary of the writing of the "Star Spangled Banner" will be celebrated in America. That is something worth thinking about. The primaries will be over a few days before that.

A certain rich man retired from business, bought a splendid property and began to play golf. He had worked hard from childhood so of course as a golfer, he wore no medals but on the other hand his tips to the caddies were the best.

A colored cotton-picker lost his job and was taken on at the golf club, and the first person he caddied for was the rich New Yorker. The usual was a long one and at the end the New Yorker tipped with his usual generosity. The caddie chuckled for joy and then added: "You're mighty kind, boss. Will you be diggin' here again about de same time tomorrow?"

There is one question that bothers every nation on earth and that is the money question. All nations want it even if they have to borrow it and then not pay it back.

A local man was bragging about a blue suit he had been wearing for 10 years. "Look at it," he said. "There's an example of the kind of goods to buy. 'Yes, a shining example,'" shot back the friend.

BOON TO BUSINESS
Snow is a great boon to small business places in the hills for it brings out large numbers of people in a holiday mood and people like that always have a few nickels to toss around.

Which reminds us of an Irishman who had been helping out at a little mountain restaurant when the business had been a bit slow in the rainy weather. The weather turned cold and the rain turned to snow. Mike was happy.

"Sure an hour of this is going to do more good in five minutes than a month of it would in a week, at any other time!" he exclaimed happily as the big soft flakes sifted down.

A boy dining at a neighbor's home was asked by the housewife: "Can you cut your meat?" "Yes, we have meat just as tough at home," replied the kid.

Dear Miss Markel: Give me, please, some suggestions for clothes to take on a boat trip. T. T.

Answer: If you have a small wardrobe trunk, it would be advisable to take it; otherwise, you should limit your baggage to two suitcases and a hat box, as a greater number of suitcases will prove a handicap. The following types of clothes will suit all occasions, and all kinds of weather, for on such a trip one never knows how the elements will act: Sports dresses, shoes and hats for daytime wear. These should include cool clothes for walking about deck, etc., on warm days; about two dark dresses of thin, cool material; dark shoes and a dark hat for warm, rainy days; a tweed or camel's hair coat (for possible cool weather which may or may not appear).

On shipboard, passengers usually remain in sports clothes until dinner time, when they change into dinner clothes (nothing elaborate) or "dressed" afternoon clothes. If you intend to do any social night life while on your trip, you might bring about two summer dinner dresses.

Then, of course, there is the independent candidate for public office. He don't give a hang for anything or anybody, just like a lot of voters that will vote for him.

What's What At A Glance

Franco Proves Disturbing Factor.
Falangist Spain Hard To Deal With.
Country Violently Individualistic.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

Washington, August 15.

AS IF FASCISTS and Nazis weren't enough of a headache, the state department now has a Falangist pest to worry about. A Fascist boss is a duce. A Nazi boss is a caudillo. El Duce Mussolini? De-fuehrer Hitler? El Caudillo Franco? It's a bother even to learn the nomenclature. Still worse is the state department's job of maintaining any sort of normal diplomatic relations with these freak outfits.

Falangist Spain promises to be harder Italy or Nazi-istic Germany. Mussolini has held his duce-ship and Hitler his fuehrer-ship for a sufficient length of time to have enabled the department to become more or less acquainted with their respective peculiarities. To be sure, with the extinction of Benito way or another, fascism or nazism or the twain may show up on short notice. Nevertheless, for the present, they have a certain sort of stability.

Spain is too new a caudillo to have been assessed yet. Moreover, the Falangist regime shows signs of disintegrating overnight, and pretty speedily. El Caudillo thought he had the Spanish republicans licked. And may be he did, but now the faction that he licked em with appears to be splitting into a couple of three sub-factions, preparatory to a resumption of civil warfare.

A Funny Country

Spain's a funny country. It's violently individualistic. It's been run here and there, by various prehistoric groups of natives; by the Romans, by Charlemagne, by the Moors, by the Bourbons, by the Hapsburgs, it's been a republic, a monarchy, a dictatorship! It's been out-and-out anarchistic. No outfit ever stayed for very long in power, because none ever was in a majority. As soon as some particular gang gained temporary control a lot of rival little minorities ganged up on it, squashed it, and then went to fighting amongst themselves. In my own comparatively brief time as a newspaperman I've covered two Spanish rebellions, with the constitution suspended and all the trimmings.

It isn't actually any one country. The Castilians, the Catalans and the Basques speak distinct languages—not counting the Portuguese.

Well, rather recently King Alfonso was dethroned. A so-called republic followed. It was anti-clerical. The clericals are conservative. There are plenty of Spanish conservatives who aren't a bit clerical. In this particular case, however, they agreed that the republicans were radical. In fact, they said the latter were communists. Some of them were, doubtless. There were numerous anarchists, too, though. Likewise there was a contingent of just ordinary republicans.

Accordingly, the conservative element rushed to arms. General Franco (today's caudillo) took their cause in hand.

It evidently looked to El Duce and Der Fuehrer like a dandy chance to scoop Spain into their "axis" against the democracies—helping Franco. Spain isn't such a pewee of a nation, and it consists of dandy geographical advantages—especially as applied to the Mediterranean. As applied to Latin America also, if that's of any interest to Uncle Sam.

Franco wins—but—

Franco won. But, as military strategists say, how about consolidating his victory?

He's enormously indebted to Mussolini; largely to Hitler. And, if he's to stick, he vitally needs em both henceforward. Nor is there any question that he's favorable to becoming a caudillo, duce or fuehrer.

Yet he has a terrible handicap. His anti-republican supporters were overwhelmingly Spanish monarchists. They don't want a totalitarian government—with a duce, a fuehrer or a caudillo, or a dictator of any other brand. They want a king.

So Caudillo Franco has the bulk of the Spanish conservatives against him right off the reel. Of course the anarchists (and they're formidable in Spain) are hostile. The royalists are on the war trail. The royalists are on the war trail. The royalists are on the war trail.

He looks little, but he's like that trifling event in Servajevo, that started the World war.

They used to talk about the Balkans as the "cockpit of Europe." Well, let Spain try. In Caudillo Franco's name, inspired by Fuehrer Hitler's and Duce Mussolini's encouragement, to grab Gibraltar, and see what'll happen!

The international trouble with Franco is—he probably is nutty. Still, the same thing may be said of Mussolini and Hitler.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Up around Plattsburg, N. Y., khaki legions are cutting record breaking ditches. The general staff at Washington thinks highly of the old Roman philosophers, and in times of peace never ceases to prepare for war. And because of this the First Army is moving into the biggest maze of peace-time maneuvers the east has ever looked on.

Plans for so much marching and counter-marching got a World War veteran to talking the other evening. "Once," he said, "I maneuvered all day long in a pelting rain. That was a battle! I fought from ten in the morning till six of a winking wet evening."

It happened after the Armistice when some quip performance was forever being thought up for the American Expeditionary Force by B. H. Q. "If it wasn't a divisional inspection," the veteran said, "it was a school, and if it wasn't a school it was maneuvers."

In those days the veteran was a lieutenant in a machine gun battalion stationed at a platoon-sized French town. "And if we had a fine rest," he said, "we'd have had a fine rest. Our living quarters were grand. All the men had barns as dry as toast. Warm, too. And myself, I got a room with an old grandmother who used to make me chocolate every night."

He took that chocolate with double thanks the evening he got his orders for the rainy day maneuvers. He was to take a couple of sergeants and do something or other in connection with an attack by the infantry. "Exactly what, I never learned," he admitted. "My first instructions told me to report with my detail to an infantry officer I'd find under a big tree at a crossroad. The crossroad was so many kilometers east of a little town called Bonnet."

So he set out, and shortly he came to little Bonnet. And there he noticed a car in front of an inn. It was a big car, and it flew a flag with the stars of a general. And as he went on he pictured the general and all the staff working like mad to get out the operations orders. At last he came to the crossroads and the big tree.

Shaw does not have the appearance of a hard-boiled auto racer. Not very tall, as one would expect, he looks more the part of a movie actor, more the Adolph Menjou type.

But once behind the wheel of his famous racer he is tops in the field and will try hard to make it two in a row at Indianapolis on Memorial Day 1940, a feat that no other race driver in the history of the Indianapolis speedway has been able to accomplish.

Shaw holds a very enviable record at Indianapolis, having won the race twice 1937 and 1938, has three seconds to his credit, a fourth and seventh in his 19 years of dare-devil

'A Warden's Kindness Changed Everything'

Dan McNally, one of the most colorful figures in American evangelism, preached to one of the largest Monday night crowds in the Calvary Gospel Tabernacle and will be heard again tonight.

In connection with a moving sermon last night on "The Ability of Christ," taken from Heb. 7:25, McNally related some of his prison experiences.

He was shot some years ago in a break from Missouri State Prison, receiving 22 bullet wounds. He was desperately hurt, and in spirit desperately weary. The warden came and spoke of Christ's teachings—and reasons for living.

McNally said last night, "The kindness of a warden changed my attitude toward everything."

He has preached for the past eleven years and his ministry has been helpful to countless numbers.

Young People Have Picnic Monday Night

A group of approximately 175 young people from the Gospel Tabernacle, 210 Pearson street, motored to the Willis-Roy Park on the Butler road Monday evening where they had their annual outing.

The group left the church at 5 led by the president, Clyde Bookamer.

The young men of the crowd played baseball, horseshoes, etc., while the young ladies enjoyed various diversions. At 6:30 the call was sent forth to come and "eat" and the young people lost no time consuming large quantities of hot dogs, coffee, cake and ice cream.

Following the refreshments, group singing was enjoyed led by Carrie Gibbons. A boys quartet composed of Russell Haggerty, Ben Jenkins, Andrew George and Edward Gustafson favored the picnickers with several selections in song: The Misses Emma, Esther, Pearl and Mildred Gibbons, Alice Grimes, Ella Jane Smith and Elizabeth Hutchison assisted in the preparation of the food.

the suit of "Gens de Choeur" (Coeur)—Choir men or Ecclesiastics. The Spades obtained their name and design from the Spanish "Espade" or the Italian "Spade" sword, and that suit was the warrior suit or noble suit. The Diamonds (carreaux-square tiles), represented the citizens, the merchants, The Clubs—and you will find the trefol leaf painted on the cards—was the acorn, representing the peasantry. In other words, the four suits represented four classes of citizens—the Ecclesiastics, the Nobles, the Bourgeoisie and the Peasants.

The lowest in rank of the picture cards in the deck—the Jack is also known as the Knave and this idea of the knave is derived from the German "Knabe" and he, while the Kings and Queens represent the highest rank, represents the servants in attendance upon the knights.

All of this may seem far-fetched, but it is true concerning a deck of playing cards and there are many other things that might be said about them. It is very interesting.

For example: The gamblers—those who gamble with playing cards very much, speak of the "one-eyed Jack" and the "one-eyed King" You may pick up any deck of playing cards and you will find that the King of Diamonds has but one eye and you will find that the Jack of Diamonds and the Jack of Spades have but one eye, the rest of the Kings, Queens and Jacks face you with two eyes and these "one-eyed" Jacks are looked upon rather askance by the gamblers.

The next time you look at the cards you may be surprised to find that every deck is printed exactly alike. The Queens have the same necklaces; the Kings hold the same baton—everything as they were painted and printed many years ago.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Celebration Ends Tonight In Ward

Band Concert And Fireworks Display Scheduled For To- night On Program

Annual celebration in honor of the Mary Assumption, being held today in the Seventh Ward will come to a close tonight at 10:45 o'clock, with a brilliant fireworks display. Earlier in the evening a band concert is scheduled.

The concert will be given by the Columbus society band at 7:30 o'clock in South Liberty street. Victor Gaspare, director of the band will be in charge of the program.

This is one of the big days of the year for the Italian-American residents of the ward, and is one looked forward to for several weeks.

Program for the celebration began at 9:30 o'clock this morning with high mass in St. Lucy's church. Rev. Fr. Sebastian Ippolito was in charge of this program.

The committee, headed by James Masone, has been working hard to make this celebration a success. John Munno, Mike Perrotta and Dominick Prospero are the other committee members who are aiding Chairman Masone.

NEWS BRIEFS IN WARD DISTRICT

It rather appears as though there is a vacation for clubs and church organizations this week, in the ward. Very few, if any meetings have been announced for this week, which is quite unusual.

Rev. D. C. Schneib, pastor of the Mahoningtown Presbyterian church, is vacationing in Cherry Tree, Pa. He expects to return to his home in the ward during the latter part of this week.

Many of the Cottage Grove summer residents are turning their thoughts to moving back to town.

Several families have already returned to their permanent homes, having spent the best part of the summer at the grove.

Bicycle riding on the ward streets is becoming a more dangerous practice each year. A very near accident between a motorist and a bicycle rider was averted Monday evening on North Liberty street, only because the car was equipped with very efficient brakes.

Mahoningtown Branch library was a busy place Monday night. There were automobiles, owned by visitors to the branch, parked along both sides of Madison avenue, in the library vicinity, and the library itself was well filled with visitors.

St. Margaret's church tennis court was used Monday night for one of the preliminary tennis matches in the city-county tournament, and there was rather a large crowd of spectators gathered to witness the game.

GROUP FROM WARD ON CAMPING TRIP

Mahog club girls motored to Lakewood on Sunday where they are spending the week at the Whitacre cottage. Loretta Butts, Youngstown road, is chaperoning the group. Those who went are Rita Reichert, Ruth Taylor, Anna McHattie, Ashland avenue; Jane Bollinger, West Madison avenue; Vyda Mullen, North Liberty street; Dorothy Metzler, Cherry street.

Later in the week, Helen Stritzinger, Cherry street, and Dorothy Hackett, West Madison avenue, will join the group.

PEARL KERR IS OUT OF HOSPITAL

Pearl Kerr of East Cherry street, has returned to her home, having been discharged from the Jameson Memorial hospital, Monday afternoon.

Miss Kerr was in the hospital receiving treatment for injuries to her head, sustained when she fell on the floor in Axe's Market, where she is employed.

RECOVERS FROM INJURY

Joseph DeVivo, Montgomery avenue, is now able to be about some, having greatly recovered from injuries sustained recently while at work. He was hurt in Youngstown and was treated in a hospital there before being permitted to return to his home in Mahoningtown.

RESIDENTS AWAKENED

As early as 6 o'clock this morning many residents of the ward were awakened by the sound of exploding aerial bombs, being set off on South Liberty street, to mark the start of the big celebration being held today.

SEVENTH WARD PERSONALS

Mrs. Herman Martin, Cherry St. is visiting relatives in Erie.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gilbert, West Cherry street, are visiting in Philadelphia.

Do You Remember?

Compiled And Presented For Publication In The News By Fred B. Sankey, President Of Old Timers'
Day Association

Old Timers Day Cascade Park, Wednesday, August 16, 1939.

The Old Timers respectfully extend great gratitude to Mr. Fred L. Rentz, publisher of the New Castle News for his characteristic generosity in placing at our disposal proper space for the extended history and personalities in the "Do You Remember" column. It has been fully appreciated, and many have born testimony to this end. Some prominent people have necessarily been omitted. Possibly in the future proper honor can be bestowed.

The Old Timers first annual picnic was celebrated at Cascade park (Big Run falls) August 23, 1907. The original founders who constituted its first executive committee were the following gentlemen: Dr. James K. Pollock, chairman; William T. Butz, secretary; Charles C. Sankey, Wells B. Clendenin, Harvey E. McGowan, Scott D. Long, J. S. DuShane, and David L. Campbell. The membership embraced those residents who had settled here in Lawrence county, with their families, prior to 1861, their descendants and their families. Old Timers day gives us an opportunity once a year to meet our old friends who come from a distance, and others we have not seen for many years.

Six new members, all of whom are descendants of pioneer families, were elected to serve on the executive committee at a meeting held in the Castleton hotel on June 15th last.

The present executive committee to carry on the work of the Old Timers association follows: Fred B. Sankey, president; Fred L. Rentz and O. H. P. Green, vice presidents; Fred Paul Butz, treasurer; Herbert S. Kirk, secretary; R. H. Whaley, R. H. McCann, Richard P. Dana, Frank H. Robinson, Guy J. Wadlinger, James K. Love, Samuel DeGraff Pearson, Alex. Crawford Hoyt, George S. Long, S. Reed McGowan, Sam H. McGowan.

The readers of this column have no doubt suspected by this time that we have had an objective, namely—reviving the Old Timers association which will be a contri-Bution to the community life of New Castle, binding the present generation back to the people of the past, and re-vitalizing the ethical spirit of our social life.

The Old Timers association believes in the continued progress of New Castle and Lawrence county. Our ancestors did a good job when they cleared the wilderness of all the underbrush and impediments. They started with log cabins, grist mills, etc., and developed our natural resources to such an extent, that New Castle eventually became a steel center, with the largest tin plate mill in the world. Why stop? Let's boost New Castle.

If you have enjoyed reading this column, we hope you will spread the news that New Castle, "the city of trees" well paved streets and sidewalks, palatial homes and buildings, and congenial people, is a good place to live. And that our location in "The Centre of America's Largest Consuming Area" is not the only thing we have to offer as an inducement to locate industry here. Our county is a garden spot, and the picturesque scenery which one sees on a drive throughout the county is comparable to England's country side, and provides an additional attraction to those who might locate here. Urge your friends from a distance to come to New Castle and see for themselves.

The executive committee thanks you heartily for your interest, and now we bid you a fond farewell, hoping to see you all at Cascade park, Wednesday, August 16th, 1939. (The End)

Steel Executive Starts Own Plant

Charles Fassinger And Sons Prepare To Operate Own Plant At East New Castle

After 45 years service with the Oliver Iron and Steel company, going from office boy to vice president, Charles Fassinger of Pittsburgh is preparing to operate a plant of his own at East New Castle, manufacturing steel products.

Like Henry Ford, Mr. Fassinger believes that small plants in rural communities are the type of plants that should be encouraged, and with his sons expects to get started within a short time.

His experience in the steel products business is an all-inclusive one. As a boy of 12 he started with the Oliver company as an office boy. At 14 he was made a bolt maker, and at 23 was head of a department. From that he advanced to the vice presidency of the company.

Traffic Signals For Pedestrians

Light Between Red And Green Signal Give Time For Pedestrians To Cross

With the new signs painted on the traffic lanes in this city, for the direction of pedestrian traffic, it is interesting to note that some innovations are being tried in other cities, for pedestrian traffic.

In Cumberland, Md., it is noted, the traffic signs turn white between the red and green for auto and vehicle traffic, and during the time the sign remains white, pedestrians cross the intersections. On the white sign on the traffic signal is painted the word "Walk."

Pedestrians are given about equal time with auto traffic to make the crossings at intersections.

COOPERATION ESSENTIAL IN TREATMENT OF IMPETIGO

While impetigo is ordinarily just a skin disease and fairly easily cleared up, it can be very serious if it isn't treated. I have even known cases where death resulted from complications following on a bad case of impetigo.

I remember one case in particular. I was called to see this youngster, a boy of five or six. He really had a bad case of impetigo, and I'm not so sure there wasn't a bit of eczema mixed in with it. He was just a mass of sores, and the disease had apparently been going on for some time.

I treated him for a few days and then found that he was scratching continually. Well, there wasn't any use trying to cure him as long as he kept scratching, so I finally was driven to tying his hands so he couldn't scratch. I know it sounds pretty hard-boiled, but it wasn't as bad as it sounds. I just pinned his hands down to the mattress with strips of cloth.

When I did it I could see that the mother wasn't very happy about it, but I went ahead. However, apparently as soon as I had left the house she undid his hands, and he went ahead scratching. Well, he absorbed so much poison that he developed a nephritis of the kidneys and died. I still think if that mother had co-operated and left those hands fastened, so he couldn't further poison himself with his scratching that child would be alive today.

Probably the most difficult place impetigo can be located, as far as treatment goes, is in the scalp. When this happens the hair becomes matted and the skin is ulcerated. So, before you can do anything with the patient you must cut away the hair.

The treatment of impetigo falls roughly into three parts. First, the rash that is present must be cleared up; second, the infection must be prevented from spreading to other parts of the body, and lastly, other members of the household must be prevented from becoming infected.

The first task in treating the rash is to remove the crust. This forms very rapidly, and so it has to be removed frequently. The best method

U. S. Must Develop Unity Of Purpose Says Vandenberg

Warns Against Recent Policies

Senator Speaks To 1,000 Fraternal Congress Delegates At Detroit, Mich.

TELLS OF ATTEMPTS TO ARRAY GROUPS

(International News Service) DETROIT, August 15.—America can regain prosperity only through a government that can distinguish "between social-mindedness and state socialism," United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg warned Monday afternoon.

The senior Michigan senator, prominently mentioned as a Republican presidential candidate in 1940, told 1,000 delegates to the National Fraternal Congress that America must develop a unity of purpose and action foreign to the "violent forces of bigotry, intolerance, political intrigue and class hatreds" which he said have been fostered "for several destructive years."

Class Group Arrayal

He charged: "There has been a deliberate and often despicable effort to array one group of our people against another. Employees have frequently been incited against employers."

"The so-called lower third has been raised against the so-called upper two-thirds. Racial and religious prejudices have been often emphasized. Neighbor has been set off against neighbor. Great political parties have been subjected to that tyrannical, alien device which is ominously known as the 'purge'."

"It is all a part of a dangerous pattern, my fellow countrymen. In it are the seeds of destruction for democracy. It will not do. United we stand; divided we fall."

"We can have our differences. We can continue to strive with vigor and tenacity, for our own particular judgments."

Pressure Groups Fatal

"But when we split off into bitter pressure groups, each oblivious of anything save its own selfish aims; when we divide vindictively along racial or religious or class-conscious lines; when we finally fail to contemplate the common good as the indispensable objective of all concerned; when we attempt to crown any one political formula as omnipotent; when we neglect the spirit of fraternity—the fraternal intelligence which makes us know that finally we must all win or lose together; when these things come to pass, it is time for all citizens, still possessed of their perspective, to realize that eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty and that only a spiritually reunited American can survive."

Young Girl Will Wed Her Former Brother-In-Law

(International News Service) WEST CHESTER, Pa., Aug. 15.—Mrs. George Fowler, of nearby Grove, announced Monday that her 14-year-old daughter, Edith, held for investigators by authorities in Los Angeles, had full permission to marry Charles E. Biggs, cook on the U. S. Savannah.

The West Chester high school girl was taken from a train at Los Angeles when she told a conductor she was to marry Biggs, stationed at Long Beach, Cal. Biggs was divorced by Edith's older sister, Grace, 26.

"What's all the fuss about?" exclaimed Mrs. Fowler. "Edith has her full permission to marry Charles. In fact we put her on the train ourselves last Tuesday. Charles is a fine fellow, but he just couldn't get along with Grace."

The Fowler family plan to go to California to straighten things out when "we can raise the money," the mother said.

The biggest American "best seller" of all time is Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Why Old Timers Like To Talk Of McGuffey Books

Gave Many Their First Insight Into The Field Of Literature

Not long since the News contained an item telling of a convention of McGuffey clubs in an Ohio city, and incidentally it was remarked that old timers here have vivid recollections of the days when McGuffey readers were used in Lawrence county schools. One of the younger generation wants to know what was in those McGuffey readers that make old timers eyes light up when they are mentioned. Well, there was so much of an inspiring character in them that one scarcely knows where to begin.

The McGuffey readers, it must be remembered came into wide use between 1836 and 1845, when American culture was in its infancy. The Bible was the only book to which most people had access; for them the "golden realms" of literature were non-existent.

Into the hands of these intellectual paupers William Holmes McGuffey put a wise selection of reading matter which broadened their narrow horizon to include the world and the centuries. Here they learned that Shakespeare is both thrilling and satisfying, in scenes depicting Anthony and Caesar, Shylock, Hamlet, the little prince who begged his torturer not to burn his eyes out.

The still-used phrase, "a meddling some Matity," comes from the McGuffey story of the child who meddled with grandma's snuffbox and got tobacco in her eyes. In McGuffey were such incongruous but pleasant companions as Father William and John Adams, the Old Oaken Bucket and Patrick Henry, Mrs. Caudie and William Tell, Casabianca and Abou Ben Adhem.

What memories cling about the dramatic "pieces" which were recited on Friday afternoons! Wolf, wolf, try, try again; the boy stood on the burning deck; it snows! cried the schoolboy; sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish; give me liberty or give me death; strike, for your altars and your fires; I stood on the bridge at midnight. Shopworn now? Perhaps; but once they were fresh and inspiring to a rude populace.

The McGuffey's also gave middle-class America its first taste of poetry. They contained The Village Blacksmith; Break, Break, Break; Maud Muller; Gray's Elegy; Thana-topis; The Barefoot Boy; Lochinvar; The Raven; We Are Seven; The Wreck of the Hesperus; The Battle of Blenheim. Not the most abstruse poetry, but cunningly chosen for its purpose.

The readers were, of course, the very soul of morality. The Righteous Never Forsaken; No Excellence Without Labor; Beware of the First Drink; Touch Not, Taste Not, Handle Not; Respect for the Sabbath Rewarded—these and others taught lessons that lasted long.

McKEESPORT MAN DROWNS IN LAKE

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Peter Krass and A. F. Menzemer, both of Pittsburgh, were survivors Monday of an unusual accident which claimed the life of their fishing companion, George Cumpson, 45, of McKeesport, Pa. A sudden wave lashed over their rowboat and swept Cumpson, to his death in Van Buren Bay or Lake Erie.

Business was rather slack in the register and recorder's office last week, so far as deeds and mortgages are concerned. There were only forty seventy instruments of kinds, of which 21 were deeds and ten mortgages. Eight of the mortgages were to building and loans for a total of $15,050. One was to an individual for $2100 and another to an out-of-town bank for $4,000.

The county commissioners have agreed to sponsor an educational or recreational project at Aiken school. The commissioners will furnish the necessary supplies and the school board is to furnish the building.

Proclamation By President Upsets Holiday Football

Setting Of Thanksgiving Date November 23 Causes Situation, Sharon Scheduled Here

CONFERENCE WILL HAVE TO BE HELD

Much consternation is caused in high school football circles here by the proclamation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in setting Thursday, November 23 as Thanksgiving Day this year instead of the customary last Thursday in the month date which is November 30.

New Castle High is scheduled with Erie Tech for Saturday, November 18 and Sharon High on Thanksgiving Day November 30 but if there isn't any Thanksgiving on November 30, New Castle will have to play Sharon on November 23 if they care for a holiday crowd.

Plan Conference

Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh today when informed of the change in the holiday date said that he would have to confer with Faculty Manager "Scots" Nelson, and the Athletic Council in order to try and straighten the situation out.

It has always been customary here to have an open date the Saturday previous to Thanksgiving, but it may develop that the Sharon game will have to be played on the Thursday following the Erie Tech game on the 18th.

A definite form of action on the matter will be made later if it is intimated. New Castle High is not the only football school thrown into turmoil by the November 23 proclamation.

Tigers Defeat Union Civics

The West Side Tigers had Paul Morrison on the mound last night and beat the Union Civics 4 to 3 in a game that was interesting all the way. It was a pitchers battle if there ever was one. Morrison gave up five hits and Hall on the hill for the Civics was touched for but three safe blows.

Paul Morrison won his own game in the last of the fourth by slamming out a terrific home run drive to climax a three-run attack on young Hall. Thomas and Rech had extra-base hits, while Smith was the only Civic able to hit Morrison safely more than once.

The victory—number ten for the Tigers against four defeats keeps them in the running for the second-half title in the city league.

The Tigers meet the Slovak Club tonight at the Flats field and may upset the second-placers.

RAMBLING AROUND World Of Sports

Diamond Bits—Cincy officials would have you believe that the pennant is not in the bag yet. They won't even accept reservations for the world series. Then why did they award a contract for construction of 3,100 additional second-deck seats at Crosley field last week? Maybe they're preparing for the 1940 National League opener! It couldn't be "itchy fingers," could it?

Only one baseball magnate visualized the New York Yankees' slump, Clark Griffiths of the Senators. When he came out publicly with his view on the great Manhattan club, the sporting world laughed. He called the turn to perfection. Among other things, Griffiths pointed out that the Yanks had reached their peak at an early stage of the race and couldn't help but slump. Also, that they might find it tough sledding near the finish line. To this may we add that should McCarty lose the services of Bill Dickey and Joseph DiMaggio, he can kiss the '39 banner goodbye. Minus the aforementioned swat-smiths, the Yanks can't carry the Redsox's suitcases.

Sport Tid-Bits—Sleepy Jim Crowley is way ahead of schedule. Crowley bemoans the fact that Fordham will not have a good line this fall.

Local Sport Vignettes—According

Tigers-Slovaks To Play Tonight In City League

Game At Clifton Flats Field May Eliminate One Team From Second-Half Title

INDIES-ELDERS LOCKLEY FIELD

There will be a capacity crowd at the Clifton Flats field tonight for the feature game in the City Baseball league that takes the West Side Tigers to the Flats to oppose the second-place Slovak Club. The game will start at 5:45 o'clock.

A defeat for the Tigers will put them out of the running for the second half crown. A win for the Slovaks will put them ahead of the Indies providing the Indies drop to the Elders at Lockley field.

Manager Steve Gonda will start either Balla or Coates tonight and will be opposed by Paul Morrison, the Tiger ace. The Indies will counter with Lamm or Carey.

West Pittsburgh-Columbus Club

Manager Danny DeGenova hopes to remain in the second half pennant fight tonight by taking the measure of the Columbus Club at the E. & A. field. DeGenova will pitch Lefty Tonetich or it may be Dorry Gunett in an effort to win from the Mahoningtowners.

The Columbus Club will start either Rainey or Frigione their two best batters.

Ryantown Vs. St. Joes

The Ryantown team will go up to Colonial field tonight to meet the St. Josephs team. The pitchers will probably be Campbell or Owey for the Ryantowns and Sargent or Picato for the Saints.

K. Pulaskis vs. Union Civics

Another grudge battle is due to staged tonight at the Scotland Lane field, when Lefty Maslyk, manager of the Oaklands, takes his K. Pulaski team to the popular West Side field, to oppose the Union Civics. This is more or less of a district championship affair and will have lots of color. RADS WIN GAME

The National Rads went to All-quippa Sunday and defeated the Allquippa Eagles team, 5 to 1, with G. Ross pitching a three-hit game.

The Rads avenged the defeat handed them earlier in the year by the Eagles in a 16-inning game. G. Ross and Mooney led the hitting for the Rads.

BILLY CONN STOPS DORAZIO

Referee Acts To Save Blood-Covered Gus Needless Pummeling

By HYPE IGEOE

International News Service Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—Billy Conn's dream of "slapping a heavyweight around the lot," today is a fact. He cuffed a pretty tough home-bred around Shibe Park when he had Gus Dorazio so badly cut around the left eye that Leo Houck, an old warrior himself, stopped it in 1:52 of the eighth of the ten-round bout.

Conn proved that he can hold his own with the big 'uns. Conn weighed 173½; Dorazio 186 1-4.

Blood was pouring in a crimson flood from a cut over Dorazio's left eye when the battle was halted at the end of the seventh. Houck went into Dorazio's corner, looked at the eye and ordered the bout stopped before the bell had rung for the eighth.

Jimmy Wilson, a handler and Dorazio himself belittled, "No! No!" in protest, and Dr. W. P. G. Terry of the Pennsylvania boxing board ran up the stairs and examined the eye. He said:

"Okay, let it go on."

Dorazio tried to stop Conn in sheer desperation and met cruel opposition. Conn had just begun to bear down for keeps and he jabbed and hooked Dorazio unmercifully. When blood ran down Dorazio's left cheek in shocking fashion, Houck took matters into his own hands and stopped it in 1:52 of the eighth round.

New Castle Man Movie Executive

John McCormick Gives Up
Family Vocation of Railroading To Work
Way To Top

STARTED OUT
AS OFFICE BOY

New Castle folks who know John T. McCormick will be thrilled by the story of his success in the moving picture business as outlined in the following story told in "Progress," the official magazine of Universal Pictures. He is the son of Dennis J. McCormick, who prior to removing to California, operated a restaurant at 126 West Washington street, and at one time served as a member of city council.

The story of McCormick's success follows:

If you are destined for a career in motion pictures, it doesn't matter in the least that your father and his father before him spent their lives in the railroad business. You won't follow in their footsteps. One way or another motion pictures will get you.

John T. McCormick, supervisor of Universal's Art Title department should, by all the rules of heredity in professions, have been a railroad man. In New Castle, Pennsylvania, where he was born on September 14, 1898, all the McCormicks had railroad jobs.

But even at the age of 14, when John T. was selling newspapers half a block from the largest picture house in town, he had a feeling that how trains came and went, and what made them come and go, would not be his life work. He loved moving pictures. The manager of that big picture theatre knew that, and he made a deal to give young John a pass every week if he would keep the sidewalk and the lobby in front of the theatre swept clean every day. New Castle claims that for the next year or so there was never a speck of dirt in front of that theatre.

On graduating from New Castle high school in 1919, McCormick enrolled for the academic course at Duquesne university. At the end of his first year he decided to pull up stakes and get whatever education there is in the world in the motion picture business. He came to Hollywood in 1920.

Young McCormick didn't know a soul who worked in pictures or had anything to do with them. He went from one studio to another looking for a job, and couldn't even get behind the gates. One day he decided to tackle Universal, and to his great surprise the reception clerk said, "Go right in, they're waiting for you." McCormick swallowed hard, but did as he was told and was directed to Irving Thalberg's office, then the general manager of Universal. He was shown his duties as Mr. Thalberg's office boy. Five days later it was discovered that they had given the wrong boy the job, and Mr. Thalberg sent for him. He tried to convince McCormick that he didn't want to be an office boy. Mr. McCormick assured him that on the contrary, he was happy to be an office boy or anything else in a motion picture studio.

But Thalberg had other plans for him. A few directions over the telephone and ten minutes later McCormick was working in the laboratory. Then he was promoted to the cutting department, and after a stay there he became a cameraman in the Art Title department. In 1933 he was given full charge of the Title and Trick department.

With his staff of 12 cameramen and artists, McCormick does the photographing of the backgrounds for all main titles, lap dissolves, montage effects and matte shots. His department photographs all necessary inserts not made during the actual making of the picture.

McCormick lives in the heart of Hollywood, which makes him unique among Universal executives, who for the most part live away out in the country. He says that his wife and three daughters feel more than compensated for the fact that they have only a small garden as California gardens go, because of the thrill they get from living across the road from the Hollywood police station.

Bowling, fishing and badminton are the pleasures McCormick indulges in away from the studio. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus Elks lodge No. 29, and is Deputy Grand Knight of the Hollywood Council.

State Treasurer Contradicted By Governor James

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 15.—Gov. Arthur H. James Monday contradicted State Treasurer F. Clair Ross' claim that a state sales tax is necessary to raise needed relief funds.

At the same time, Governor James denied he has decided on a date for summoning the legislature into special session to solve the increasingly grave relief problem.

He called on Ross, a Democrat and appointee of former Gov. George H. Earle, to reduce administration expenses in the treasury department.

"I cannot see any possibility of a sales tax for additional relief funds," said Gov. James, "and I leave the matter of providing funds to the legislature."

Ross, who in an address before the young Democrats in Pittsburgh predicted the imposition of a sales tax, was described by the chief executive as unwilling to cooperate with the administration in making personnel reductions.

"Why did Ross increase the highly salaried jobs in his department after James took office?" asked the governor.

Former Louisiana University Heads Under Indictment

(International News Service)
NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 15.—Two former officials of Louisiana State University—George Caldwell and Eugene Barksdale—Monday were indicted by a New Orleans federal grand jury which has been probing the Louisiana political graft scandal since June 30 last.

Two indictments were returned against Caldwell, charging that he misused the mails in a series of schemes whereby he fraudulently obtained more than $10,000.

The single indictment against Barksdale charges him with diversion of $1,272 worth of WPA labor and materials.

Caldwell was formerly superintendent of construction at Louisiana State University and Barksdale was his assistant. Caldwell resigned his $6,000 a year post and Barksdale was suspended.

Panama Canal Is 25 Years Old

Twenty five years ago today, August 15, 1914, the Panama Canal was opened for operation. Most of us have never seen the canal, but we have all read about its operation. While it has only been in operation a quarter of a century, the possibilities of such a canal were envisioned four hundred years ago. Balboa and other explorers saw its possibilities. A French company that tried to build the "big ditch" failed, after vainly fighting yellow fever. Uncle Sam put the quietus on the yellow fever, as the first step toward a successful undertaking.
